OF HIS DOGS WHICH ARE IN HIGH FAVOR

OWNER OF THE EARLYBIRD KENNELS AND TWO Wonderful Scottish Terriers Owned Here

Walter Stern's Beryl and Olivia Are Considered Finest in World.

PAIR SWEPT BOARDS IN ENGLISH SHOWS

Earlybird Kennels Contain Others. Foreign and Homebreds, That Are Stars.

Plenty of enthusiasm, the wherewithal to indulge one's fancies and knowing just what one wants do not always insure success in the dog world. A fancier cannot order dogs as he might a suit of othes. In the acquisition of champions 't means "watchful waiting" and know-ng just when to buy. It is by this method and by employing missaries whom he considers the best in country that Walter Stern, owner of the Earlybird Kennels, has managed to ollect the finest string of Scottish terriers in the world, or, if that phrase is too sweeping, at least a string which includes the finest in the world.

This no one can doubt when he considers that Mr. Stern has within the last pion Earlybird Troubadour, formerly attended. champion Erus Troubadour; Champion o'clock Earlybird Olivia and Champion Bapton

Nowhere in the world is there a finer Scottish terrier than Beryl, unless, indeed, it be Olivia. Each has been beaten just once in England, and it was a case of simply turning the tables. When the two young matrons met in the show ring at the tender age of seven months, Olivia was the judge's choice. The second meeting was at the Crystal Palace show, when both had graduated from the puppy class. Here Bapton Beryl came into her own and left the red ribbon for her rival. Mr. Stern's first choice was Bapton to recommend them.

As a puppy Bapton Beryl defeated lowering the colors of the mighty glad lator of the show ring, Keppoch Dugald. Beryl is from the kennels of J. These two recent importations of Mr. Stern's have the distinction of having won their American championships in twenty-seven days. Mr. Stern had planned to do it in seventeen days-that is, if the judges liked his English dogs as well as Unfortunately, they made their appearance at the Newark show, which lost a point through the storm that delayed so many of the entrants. They had the same experience at Philadelphia, which left them two points short of their championship. In less than a month, however, Beryl and Troubadour added the coveted title to their American

Now Mr. Stern is going out after champicaships for Olivia and Daligan, the latter also a recent importation. Daligan has been shown twice and has beaten several American champions. His first appearance was under George Roper at Danbury and his second under George Sedgesay Jackle and Dorris.

The importation of England's best has temporarily eclipsed the homebreds in the for the conservative dog which hails Earlybird Kennels, although they are among the best in the country. Here's a Dog Which Really Sings

Among all the celebrities which were benched at the Poodle Club Show yesterday none attracted more attention than a little black curly dog called Nigger. He is the property of Frank P. Shek, and among other accomplishments Nigger can sing.

He doesn't have to be coaxed either nor does he urge a cold. When his owner tells him to sing be sits up and sings a distinct tune, and his repert ry is gulte extensive.

Some one suggested Mr. Shek change his name to Caruso, and at times the likeness was rather startling.
